

Naoto Hirakata is responsible for the management of three community-based and diverse PPS, Power Producer and Supplier, start-up companies. Utilizing his expertise in power grids and renewable energy, he also has a leading role in sales strategy and planning of forefront green energy retailing business at NTT Facilities, Inc. Besides engaged in the bulk power networks planning and renewable energy development at TEPCO, Tokyo Electric Power Company, he has managed international standardization initiatives including Smart Grids, EV charging and Ultra High Voltage transmission systems before joining NTT Facilities in 2014. Earlier in his career, he received a Master of Engineering Management degree from Duke University in 2009, ME degree in Electrical Engineering from Nagoya University in 1998 and Project Management Professional certification.