

Korhan Kayisli received a BSc degree in electronics education from Sakarya University, Sakarya, Turkey, in 2001, and an MSc degree in Electronics and Computer Science from Firat University, Elazig, Turkey, in 2004. He received PhD degree at the area of power electronics in Electric and Electronics Engineering at Firat University, Elazig, Turkey, in 2012. He worked in some different universities in Türkiye. He is currently an associate professor in the Department of Electrical-Electronics Engineering, Engineering Faculty, Gazi University, Ankara, Turkey. He is an editor of Electrical Power Components and Systems Journal, the co-editor of International Journal of Renewable Energy Research. Also, he is a senior member of IEEE. His fields of interest are power electronics, renewable energy, green technologies, converters, power factor correction, robust control, artificial intelligence and educational technologies.